

April 30th 2012 I was sentenced to 12 yrs. I was diagnosed with glaucoma in 2008. I need eye drops 3 times a day. I am hurting and my vision is fading fast.

2nd. I take meds for mental problems and my meds are not letting me sleep or behave somewhat normal. I wake up day + night fighting. I have fallen out of bed several times also I sign every day to talk to some one in mental health still no kind of response is given to me. None.

The grievance procedure here is to write on paper to the Lt. A Federal Judge was here not long ago and he told them to fix the procedure. But still nothing. They answer to what they want when they want too.

Id.

Plaintiff sues Nurse Floyd Sealey solely in his official capacity, and seeks “medicine for [his] eyes,” “talk to mental health about meds,” and “monetary compensation.” Id.

For the reasons discussed below, the undersigned recommends that Defendant’s Motion to Dismiss be GRANTED, and that this action be DISMISSED.

II. Law and Analysis

A. Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(b)(6)

Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(b)(6) provides that a claim may be dismissed for failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted. In order to state a claim upon which relief can be granted, a complaint must contain either direct or inferential allegations respecting all material elements to sustain a recovery under some viable legal theory. Mezibov v. Allen, 411 F.3d 712, 716 (6th Cir. 2005). Conclusory allegations or legal conclusions masquerading as factual allegations will not suffice. Id. A complaint containing a statement of facts that merely creates a suspicion of a legally cognizable right of action is insufficient. Bell Atlantic Corp. v. Twombly, 127 S.Ct. 1955, 1965 (2007). The “[f]actual allegations must be enough to raise a right to relief above the speculative level”; they must “state a claim to relief that is plausible on its face.” Id. At 1965, 1974. See also, Ass’n of Cleveland Fire Fighters v. City of Cleveland, 502 F.3d 545, 548 (6th Cir. 2007).

Moreover, the United States Supreme Court has recently addressed the appropriate standard that must be applied in considering a Motion to Dismiss for failure to state a claim. See Ashcroft v. Iqbal, 556 U.S. 662 (2009). The Iqbal Court stated in part as follows:

Two working principles underlie our decision in Twombly. First, the tenet that a court must accept as true all of the allegations contained in a complaint is inapplicable to legal conclusions. Threadbare recitals of the elements of the cause of action, supported by mere conclusory statements, do not suffice Rule 8 marks a notable and generous departure from the hyper-technical, code-pleading regime of a prior era, but it does not unlock the doors of discovery for plaintiff armed with nothing more than conclusions. Second, only a complaint that states a plausible claim for relief survives a motion to dismiss Determining whether a complaint states a plausible claim for relief will, as the Court of Appeals observed, be a context-specific task that requires the reviewing court to draw on its judicial experience and common sense. . . . But where the well-pleaded facts do not permit the court to infer more than the mere possibility of misconduct, the complaint has alleged - but it has not “show[n]” - “that the pleader is entitled to relief.”

556 U.S. at 678-79 (citations omitted).

B. 42 U.S.C. § 1983

Plaintiff alleges violations of his Eighth Amendment rights pursuant to 42 U.S.C. § 1983.

See Docket No. 1. Section 1983 provides, in part, that:

Every person who, under color of any statute, ordinance, regulation, custom, or usage, of any State or Territory or the District of Columbia, subjects, or causes to be subjected, any citizen of the United States or other person within the jurisdiction thereof to the deprivation of any rights, privileges, or immunities secured by the Constitution and laws, shall be liable to the party injured in an action at law, suit in equity, or other proper proceeding for redress...

Thus, in order to state a claim under § 1983, a plaintiff must allege the violation of a right secured by the Constitution and laws of the United States, and must show that the alleged deprivation was committed by a person acting under color of state law. West v. Atkins, 487 U.S. 42, 48, 108 S. Ct. 2250, 2254-55 (1988), citing Parratt v. Taylor, 451 U.S. 527, 535, 101 S. Ct. 1908, 1913, 68 L. Ed. 2d 420 (1981) (overruled in part on other grounds, Daniels v. Williams, 474 U.S. 327, 330-331, 106 S. Ct. 662, 88 L. Ed. 2d 662 (1986)); Flagg Bros., Inc. v. Brooks, 436 U.S. 149, 155, 98 S. Ct. 1729, 1733, 56 L. Ed. 2d 185 (1978). The traditional definition of acting under color of state law requires that the defendant in a § 1983 action have exercised power “possessed by virtue of state law and made possible only because the wrongdoer is clothed with the authority of state law.” Id. at 49, 108 S. Ct. 2255, quoting United States v. Classic, 313 U.S. 299, 326, 61 S. Ct. 1031, 1043, 85 L. Ed. 1368 (1941).

C. The Case at Bar

As an initial matter, Defendant is sued solely in his official capacity. Docket No. 1. In complaints alleging federal civil rights violations under § 1983, “[a]n official capacity claim filed against a public employee is equivalent to a lawsuit directed against the public entity which that agent represents.” Claybrook v. Birchwell, 199 F.3d 350, 355 n.4 (6th Cir. 2000) (citing Kentucky v. Graham, 473 U.S. 159, 165, 105 S. Ct. 3099, 3105, 87 L. Ed. 2d 114 (1985)). See also, Frost v. Hawkins County Bd. of Educ., 851 F.2d 822, 827 (6th Cir. 1988). As such, when a public employee is sued in his or her official capacity, the claims are essentially made against the public entity. Id.

Defendant is a Nurse employed by the Maury Regional Medical Center (“MRMC”), who works at the Maury County Jail, which contracts with the MRMC to provide nursing services to its inmates. MRMC, as an entity that contracts to provide nursing services to Maury County Jail inmates, can be subject to liability under § 1983 because it is performing a traditional state function and is therefore deemed to be acting under color of state law. See, e.g., Hicks v. Frey, 992 F.2d 1450, 1458, (6th Cir. 1993).

In order to prevail on his official capacity claim against Defendant, therefore, Plaintiff must allege facts that show or imply the existence of a constitutionally deficient official policy, practice, or custom. City of Canton v. Harris, 489 U.S. 378, 387-388 (1989). Specifically, Plaintiff must plead allegations, inter alia, that an “official policy or custom was adopted by the official makers of policy with ‘deliberate indifference’ towards the constitutional rights of persons affected by the policy or custom.” City of Canton at 387-388; Monell at 690-691 (In order to find a governmental entity liable, Plaintiff must establish that, (1) he suffered a deprivation of a constitutionally protected interest, and (2) the deprivation was caused by an official policy, custom, or usage of the local governmental entity.). Plaintiff has failed to do so.

Plaintiff does not make any allegations of the existence of an official policy, practice, or custom whatsoever. See Docket No. 1. Accordingly, Plaintiff cannot sustain his official capacity claims against Defendant, and Defendant’s Motion should be granted.

III. Conclusion

For the foregoing reasons, the undersigned recommends that Defendant’s Motion to Dismiss (Docket No. 89) be GRANTED, and that this action be DISMISSED.
